It is virtually impossible to commit, but the Dutch NGO Women on Waves aims to make it still possible to halt safely pregnancies. The organization is now a drone in order to get the needed pills by Polish women.

Women on Waves sends the pills normally post, but for now chooses to leave a drone flying from the German Frankfurt an der Oder to the Polish Slubice. The flight is scheduled for next Saturday, after which local ensured the spread of abortion pills. That is very much needed, emphasizes founder Rebecca Gomperts, because in Poland Annually 50,000 illegal abortions take place, where the safety of the woman is not always guaranteed.

"We can not stress enough how important it is to abortion in a safe manner," said Gomperts in The Telegraph . "That is extremely important, because in this area are major differences in Europe. We now choose to carry the pills a drone to draw attention to the situation in Poland, but it could also be a new delivery method in the future. "

It is Gomperts wait and see how people react to the action. It's probably not illegal to fly the pills to Poland, but Polish women should not use them in principle. "It is also our first time, so we do not know what the government will do. That we will have to wait and see. "
