Abortion pills will be delivered by robots to activists waiting to take them outside Laganside Courts.

The action - in answer to the ongoing abortion ban in Northern Ireland - is planned by activists calling for a change in the law.

A doctor in the Netherlands will be operating the droid dropping off the tablets at noon on Thursday.

Organisers Women on Waves , Women on Web and ROSA Northern Ireland have also planned a bus tour which will stop in Lisburn, Cookstown and Derry to offer abortion counselling and ultrasounds.

Eleanor Crossey Malone from socialist feminist movement ROSA told Belfast Live that NI women are already taking these pills after ordering them online.

She said: "It's become the major, most accessible way for women here to have abortions and it's very widely done.

"Having an abortion ban doesn't stop abortions from taking place. It just stigmatises them and makes them more difficult.

"Politicians and police are aware that the pills are widely being used and we want to highlight the reality of the situation."

Laganside Courts is being targeted because "this is the court room where women have been prosecuted for accessing these safe but illegal abortion pills" according to the activist.

A recent UN report said the UK was violating the rights of women here by not allowing pregnancies to be terminated in Northern Ireland, but the issue of abortion has been more widely debated since the Republic of Ireland voted in favour of repealing the eighth amendment.

Eleanor said she feels action must be taken in the wake of the Abortion Referendum in the Republic of Ireland, as "we are going to be the last place in Europe apart from Malta that have a virtual blanket ban on abortions and I think we need to take strong action now".

"We won't rest until we have abortion rights in Northern Ireland," she added.

"We will be having our protest at 12pm tomorrow outside Laganside Courts. Some of our activists will take safe, but illegal, abortion pills in defiance of the law. We have had a lot of support on this so we are hoping that a lot of people will turn up to show solidarity.

The PSNI's Detective Chief Superintendent Tim Mairs said: "Offences of procurement of an abortion are outlined in Sections 58 & 59 of the Offences against the Person Act 1861 and Child Destruction Sect 25 (1) Criminal Justice (NI) Act.

"These offences can reasonably be suspected in circumstances where individuals receive or procure prescription medications which are known to be used or advertised as suitable for inducing an abortion. Ingesting such drugs when pregnant or ordering and providing them to another person who is pregnant may constitute a criminal offence.

"Where we have reasonable grounds to suspect any offence has been committed or attempted the PSNI is obliged under Section 32 of the Police Act 2000 to take measures to bring the offender to justice. Where PSNI is made aware of any suspected offences, each case will be investigated on its own merits.

"The issue of Abortion is clearly a very emotive and sensitive issue that divides opinion."
